resolved itself into committee of the whole to try Officer Quentin.

Officer Quentin was represented by counsel, Col. Sanders appearing for him. City Attorney Botkin conducted the case for the plaintiffs. As the examination into the conduct of a police officer by the council was something new, Mr. Botkin stated to Mayor Fulier he did not know under what rules to proceed, and the obliging mayor said the Marquis of Queensbery rules would answer. The suggestion was not acted upon.

On motion the council resolved itself into committee of the whole with Alderman Adkinson in the chair.

Messrs. Wilder, Knudson, Travis, Gallagher, Dockstetter and Cattrell were sworn for the prosecution.

Mr. Wilder who is yardmaster at the Montana Central yard was the first witness. He testified that he was on Park average the day the alleged assault took place. enue the day the alleged assault took place and saw Mr. Quentin strike the prisoner six or eight times over the head with his club. The man made no resistance and begged the officer not to strike him, holdng his hands up in an imploring manner

The witness was closely cross-questioned by Col. Sanders, but he stuck to his story from beginning ito end. He said he was within ten ieet of the officer when he clubbed his prisoner.
The testimony of Messrs. Travis, Gallagher, Dockstetter and Cattrell substantia-ted that of Mr. Wilder, though not so minute in detail, all saying, however, that the prisoner did not offer the slightest resistance, that he had been arrested by a citizen and was standing with his hands up when he was struck. These witnesses, excepting Cattrell, were near the scene of

The defense called Messrs. Hahn, Weller and Richter as witnesses, but no one made an appearance.

The deposition of Philip Gerlach was read, as Mr. Gerlach was unavoidably abmake an attempt to strike the policaman before he pulled his club and used it. A hitch here ensued, as the officer had no witnesses and it was the desire of the council to go on with the trial.
